1. Introduction

Orqa PowerPlay is a high-performance external DVR and power distribution system designed to modernize analog video capture for FPV goggles and vintage camcorders.

By leveraging high-bitrate h264 compression at 60fps, it provides a superior "tapeless" recording solution that captures smooth, high-fidelity video directly to a microSD card. The unit features a built-in 2.4-inch LCD for real-time monitoring and utilizes dual 18500 Li-ion cells to simultaneously power both the recorder and your connected hardware.

Whether used for flight archival or retro cinematography, the PowerPlay serves as a robust, all-in-one bridge between classic analog signals and digital workflows.

3. The Power Part...

PowerPlay's Power section is a pair of two 18500, Li-ion cells, that can power a Dominator HDO + rapidFIRE + DVR for up to 3 hours*.

To recharge, either use the built-in USB-C port for up to 1.5A charging, or simply pop out the cells, and replace with a freshly charged set.

The PowerPlay ships with 1400mAh cells, but larger capacity 2040mAh cells are available from most vape shops, and are the same ones used in the FrSky X-Lite radios, so any decent FPV retailer will stock them.

* 3 hours with 2040mAh cells, not shipped with the product

 NOTE	The larger 2040mAh cells are highly recommended for reasonable battery life.

4. Charging

The PowerPlay, even though sporting a USB-C connector, does not support USB-PD charging, and therefore is limited to about 0.8A charge current, available from most standard USB ports.

Charging overnight will safely charge to full capacity, but for rapid charging it is highly recommended to remove the cells, and charge in an external charger.

Please follow the cell manufacturer's recommendations for charge current. 1C recommended for the stock cells (1.4A).

5. USB-C Video Download

The stock firmware does not support downloading of files from the SD-Card over the USB port.

The 'v2' firmware image may be downloaded from the orqafpv.com PowerPlay product page.
